SPECIAL POLICE APPEAR TO BE THE REAL GUNMEN OF CHICAGO

*Chas. F. Simmons, Special Policeman, Convicted of Manslaughter in Judge Kersten's Court—12,000
Special Police, Toting Guns, Allowed To Roam Chicago Streets.*

Charles F. Simmons, a special policeman wearing a star, carrying a gun and regularly sworn in by the city of Chicago, was convicted of manslaughter yesterday.

A jury in Judge Kersten's court found him guilty of killing his landlord Hyman Jacobs of 3805 Twelfth place, in a backyard quarrel, Sept. 10, 1912.

Simmons is one of the 12,000 special policemen and authorized gunmen now on the records of the police department

As a watchman for the Empire Theater, Simmons was vouched for in a written application to Chief Gleason "of sound mind, good understanding and judgment." The jury convicted him on evidence that his understanding and judgment was not good and went too far when he shot a whole revolverful of lead at Jacobs and managed to pump three bullets into vital parts of Jacobs so that Jacobs fell dead.

Simmons, as a special policeman, was required to report in person to
